Interactive Activities

Flower Craft: It is common throughout Polynesia to find great gatherings of people weaving indigenous foliage and flowers into elaborate arrangements. Guests will share in this pastime by creating their own floral piece; and learn of the significance of the lei and experience its timeless appeal.

Kapa: Otherwise tapa or bark cloth can be found throughout all of Polynesia. To Hawaiians it is a hana no'eau or skilled art that survived extinction and is being constantly revived.

Coconut Husking: The coconut is a central staple to the Polynesian diet. Maui's mother Hina is closely associated with the coconut throughout the South Pacific. Our coconut artisan will demonstrate the skill of husking, opening, and processing of the coconut from liquid to milk as it has been prepared for hundreds of years

Casual Hula's and Story Telling: Hula to share with guests who wish to remain seated and enjoy the ambiance.

Tongan Crafters: Dressed in traditional garments, our cousins the Tongan Crafters and Carvers display hand crafted artifacts for discussion and storytelling.

Samoaan Crafter: Native to the islands of Samoa, our Samoan crafter shares with you the crafts and stories behind the crafts that come from her homeland.

Hawaiian Artisans: Maui's own Kapu family will provide a Hawaiian exhibit and offer deep insight into the multitude of Hawaiian Weapons, epic voyages, and royal lineages of Maui.

Ulumaika: A Hawaiian game played during the Makahiki otherwise harvest festival where peace and the arts were enjoyed by all.

Special Features

Fresh Flower or Fish-hook Lei's: Symbolic of the bond between oneself and the land, such is manifested by wearing a lei. (Leis subject to seasonal availability)

Imu: The remarkable underground oven cooking of a whole pig using the same tools and methods of the ancients.
